[CITAK ASMAT]

Het Kaūnak-dialect wordt gesproken door 4600 zielen in 31 dorpjes die liggen ten Zuiden van de Siretsj (in dit dialect Sūrta genoemd) ten Oosten van de Pasūwe, en ten Noorden van de Sua. De uiterste oostgrens is de Mapi-rivier.

- Drabbe 1963:4.

The Kaunak dialect is spoken by 4600 souls in 31 villages which lie to the south of the Siretsj ... to the east of the Pasuwe, and to the north of the Sua. The farthest eastern boundary is the Mapi River.

Citak Asmat (CI) is spoken by about 4900 people living in the area directly east of the confluence of the Sirec and Pasuwe Rivers. In the east and south CI borders on languages of the Awyu-Dumut Family. ... The Government census of 1967 lists twenty-nine villages but only seventeen of these could be identified with villages on Drabbe's dialect map (Drabbe 1963), leaving fourteen village names on the map unmatched with names mentioned in the census list.

The list below contains the twenty-nine village names of the Government census list. ...

The figures presented below have been taken from the 1967 census as quoted in the Asmat Sketch Book, vol. 2, 1970:111-112. Some gaps have been filled by taking figures of the 1961 District Health Centre Census quoted in Van Amelsvoort 1964:192-194. Only for Ayam ... a recent figure was available [C. Roesler, p.c., 1979] The villages Mecew ..., Yuni ..., and Muet ... have been assigned their correct place in the list according to the dialect information received from C. Roesler ...

- Voorhoeve 1980:171-172.

... M. Bromley (1975) ... states that in Tiau ... 'a somewhat different but mutually intelligible dialect is spoken'. The short lists collected on the upper Sirec and the Brazza Rivers ... also seem to represent dialects of Citak Asmat (Van Arsdale 1975:18).

There are several reports on the intelligibility of CI to speakers of Central Asmat. Those of the nearby villages Wooy and Yinak (SO dialect of CA) say that they 'understand little of the Citak dialect' (Van Arsdale 1974:32). They are 'able to understand isolated words but not able to conduct a normal conversation' (Van Arsdale 1975:18). The coastal Asmat (KW speakers) 'find the Citak dialect to be largely unintelligible' (Van Arsdale 1974:19). Citak speakers find that past the first Asmat (SO?) villages they cannot communicate very well (Bromley, personal communication).

These reports seem to lend support to the lexicostatistical classification of CI as a separate language. Further support can be found when we look at the phonological data. ...
