In the very heart of West Irian or West New Guinea live the Dani's, a Highland people scattered over several valleys and -- along several rivers, roughly between 137° and 140° East. Long. and 3° and 5° South. Lat.

The name "Dani" is a "pars pro toto", Dani or Dlani being the name of a certain clan in the Balim Valley, but nowadays it is understood by Dani's as well as non-Dani's to designate the whole people.

- Stap 1966:v.

*

Grand Valley Dani is a chain of dialects each intelligible with the next from the Pyramid mountain area in upper Grand Valley to the Samenage river on the southwest side of the gorge and a little below the Wet river on the northeast side of the gorge; dialects of this chain are also spoken in enclaves between Grand Valley and Archbold Lake and between Grand Valley and some North Ngalik or Jaly populations. There is no local term used by people in this area for this whole dialect chain; the opposite ends of the chain are mutually unintelligible dialects. Grand Valley Dani and Western Dani constitute a sub-family within the greater Dani family.
