... In the West Kebar villages of Senopi and Asiti II another Karon language is spoken, called Karon Dori. Locally, the Karon 'Atas' (high) are / distinguished from the Karon 'Bawah' (low) [see KARON PANTAI). The former originate from the -- northern and southern -- slopes of the high Tokhiri mountains west of Senopi, whereas the latter come from the area between northern Ayawasi and West Ayfat (see also Schoorl 1979) to the south of the Tokhiri mountains.

Karon and Ayfat clans gradually moved from both areas to the Kebar plain, especially since the period of the 1950s when the Roman Catholic Mission started to work amongst the Karon Dori in the East Karon/West Kebar. The process of concentrating mountain people in villages is still going on with the building of Asiti II, since 1978, where new Karon Dori families and people from the area east of the Ayfat/Kamundan river recently settled. The villages of Senopi and Asiti II form the border of Karon mountain

(and Ayfat) settlement to the west. (The neighbouring villages of Asiti I and Arapi I are mainly Kebar-speaking and Kebar-orientated; for instance, the so-called Siwa and Mafif stories of the Ayamaru area (see Elmberg 1968) are known by the Karon/Ayfat inhabitants of Senopi and Arapi II but not by the Kebar inhabitants of Arapi I and Asiti I. ...
